

The Delancey Street Foundation
600 Embarcadero
San Francisco, CA 94107

Dr. Mimi Silbert
President

Delancey Street was begun in 1971 by Dr. Mimi Silbert as a residential center in San Francisco for criminal rehabilitation and vocational training. It was designed to be for ex-convicts and run by ex-convicts.

Delancey Street has strict rules of behavior and a self-governing system. Each resident must develop at least three marketable skills as well as earn a high school equivalency diploma and pass a core liberal arts curriculum taught in-house.

The Embarcadero Triangle complex contains 177 apartments for Delancey Street residents. It also contains meeting rooms, a movie theater, a swimming pool and space for businesses including moving, chauffeuring, printing, picture framing and catering.

There are over 400 residents in the Embarcadero Triangle complex. Delancey Street has two sites in California, one in Los Angeles and the other in San Francisco. It has other replication sites in New York, North Carolina and New Mexico.

Program Components

Business Management Training
Fire Cadet Program - Youth Cadets
Life Learning Academy
Performing Arts Center
Historic Architecture/Landscape Architecture

Services

Arts and Crafts
Computer Programming
Culinary Arts Training
Education
Mediation - Student Council
Mentoring
Recreation
Transportation
Vocational Training

Capacity Building

Multi-state Delancey Street Replication
Eisenhower National Cluster Workshops
Argus Replication Training

Delancey Street Foundation offers Business Management Training, Fire Cadet Program - Youth Cadets, Life Learning Academy, Performing Arts Center, and Historic Architecture/Landscape Architecture. Service includes Arts and Crafts, Computer Programming, Culinary Arts Training, Education, Meditation-Student Council, Mentoring, Recreation, Transportation, and Vocational Training.

Multi-State Delancey Street Replication, Eisenhower National Cluster Workshops, and Argus Replication Training collaborate to ensure Delancey Street's success.